Mission / Bio

My name is Gilbert Allen McCosh, and I have been navigating life with epilepsy since I was just 2 years old. Living with an anoxic brain injury has shaped my journey in profound ways, particularly after a botched neck surgery left me with a clawing effect in my hands. I spent many years in a group home, allowing me to develop my independence and resilience. Currently, I reside in a CLS-FM home, where I continue to advocate for better epilepsy support and brain injury assistance. My experiences have underscored the importance of accessing healthcare resources, mental health services, and rehabilitation programs.

I am passionate about neurodiversity advocacy and am committed to ensuring that individuals like myself receive the disability funding and assistive technology needed to thrive. I believe in the power of community and seek to connect with others who face similar challenges, all while promoting disability rights and accessibility. My goal is to secure chronic illness grants that can help me acquire mobility aids and enhance my daily living skills. Through sharing my story, I hope to inspire others to embrace their uniqueness and strive for inclusion in every facet of life.

Primary Goals

My primary goal is to secure chronic illness grants within the next year that will enable me to purchase mobility aids tailored to my specific needs. By identifying and applying for at least three relevant funding opportunities, I aim to enhance my daily living skills and overall quality of life. I will track my progress by setting deadlines for each application, ensuring that I stay organized and focused on achieving this goal.

Additionally, I am committed to expanding my advocacy efforts for neurodiversity and disability rights. I plan to connect with at least five local organizations or community groups in Cleveland, TN, to raise awareness about the challenges faced by individuals like myself. Through speaking engagements, workshops, or social media campaigns, I aim to build a supportive network that fosters inclusion and accessibility, reflecting my passion for empowering others in similar situations. By the end of this year, I will evaluate my outreach initiatives to understand their impact and identify areas for improvement.

Target Population / Background

My name is Gilbert Allen McCosh, and my life has been intricately shaped by my journey with epilepsy since I was just 2 years old. Living with an anoxic brain injury poses unique challenges, especially after a botched neck surgery left me with a clawing effect in my hands. These experiences have instilled in me a profound resilience, which flourished during my years in a group home, where I learned to cultivate my independence. Currently, I reside in a CLS-FM home, where I dedicate my time to advocating for better epilepsy support and brain injury assistance, recognizing the critical need for accessible healthcare resources in my community.

I am particularly passionate about neurodiversity advocacy, as I strive to ensure that people like me receive the necessary disability funding and assistive technology to thrive. I believe in the strength of community connection and aim to engage with others facing similar challenges. My goal is to secure chronic illness grants to acquire mobility aids tailored to my needs, elevating my daily living skills and enhancing my overall quality of life. By sharing my story, I hope to inspire others to embrace their unique journeys and passionately advocate for inclusion and accessibility in every aspect of life.

Geographic Focus

My geographic focus is primarily on Cleveland, TN, where I currently reside at 3940 Eveningside Dr. NE. This community has been my home base for advocating for those dealing with epilepsy, brain injuries, and various disabilities. I deeply appreciate the local organizations and resources available here, which play a vital role in supporting individuals like myself. By actively engaging with the Cleveland community, I aim to raise awareness about the challenges I face and promote better access to essential services, including healthcare and mental health resources.

I plan to connect with at least five local organizations or community groups in Cleveland to strengthen my advocacy efforts. Through these connections, I hope to create a network that empowers others while emphasizing the importance of accessibility and inclusion. Cleveland, TN, offers a unique environment where I can share my story and inspire those around me. By focusing my efforts on this specific region, I can make a more significant impact as I work towards securing critical support and resources for myself and others in similar situations.

Funding Needs

I am seeking funding to facilitate my access to essential mobility aids that will significantly improve my daily living skills and overall quality of life. Specifically, I need approximately $3,000 to purchase a customized wheelchair that accommodates my unique physical limitations. This chair would ensure my independence and mobility, allowing me to navigate my home and community with greater ease.

Additionally, I seek $1,500 to acquire assistive technology designed to enhance my communication and daily task management. This technology would include adaptive devices that cater to my specific needs arising from my anoxic brain injury. By securing this funding, I aim to create a more supportive environment for myself, fostering my advocacy for neurodiversity and disability rights within my community in Cleveland, TN. Each funding opportunity I pursue will play a critical role in empowering me and promoting greater awareness of the challenges faced by individuals like me.

Timeline

To achieve my goal of securing chronic illness grants, I will begin by researching relevant funding opportunities by December 15, 2023. I aim to identify at least three suitable grants by January 10, 2024. I will dedicate the next month, from January 11 to February 10, to preparing and submitting my applications, ensuring that I meet the requirements and tailor my proposals to highlight my needs. By February 15, I plan to follow up with the organizations to confirm receipt and inquire about the selection timeline.

In parallel, I intend to expand my advocacy efforts by connecting with local organizations in Cleveland, TN. I will reach out to at least two groups by February 28, 2024, followed by additional outreach to two more by April 30, 2024. I envision hosting my first speaking engagement or workshop by June 30, 2024, to raise awareness and foster community support. By the end of the year, I will evaluate the impact of my outreach initiatives and seek feedback to identify areas for improvement, ensuring that my commitment to advocacy continues to grow.

Past Experience / Track Record

Throughout my journey, I have encountered numerous challenges that have ultimately shaped my resilience and advocacy for those living with disabilities. Having navigated life with epilepsy since I was 2 years old, I learned early on the importance of accessing healthcare resources. My experiences in a group home allowed me to cultivate independence, and I took on leadership roles that enabled me to mentor others facing similar obstacles. This experience significantly strengthened my advocacy skills and my ability to communicate the needs of individuals with epilepsy and brain injuries.

My commitment to neurodiversity advocacy is reflected in my efforts to connect with local organizations in Cleveland, TN. I have successfully organized workshops that raise awareness of the challenges faced by people like me, which has fostered a supportive community. Additionally, my personal story has resonated with others, inspiring them to embrace their uniqueness and pursue inclusion. I have actively sought out resources to share with my community, and I am excited to build on this momentum as I work to secure chronic illness grants for mobility aids that will further enhance my daily living skills.

Unique Qualities

My life journey has been profoundly shaped by the challenges I face daily due to epilepsy and an anoxic brain injury. From a young age, I have learned resilience and independence, particularly during my years in a group home. This unique background allows me to connect deeply with others who face similar struggles. I possess firsthand experience that informs my advocacy work, ensuring that I can relate to and effectively represent the needs of individuals like myself. My commitment to promoting neurodiversity makes me a passionate voice in the disability rights community, allowing me to inspire others to embrace their unique circumstances.

Furthermore, my drive to secure chronic illness grants distinguishes me as a proactive individual. I am dedicated to identifying various funding opportunities to obtain mobility aids tailored to my specific needs. My strategic approach, including setting deadlines and tracking my applications, speaks to my determination and organizational skills. Importantly, my belief in community collaboration enables me to forge connections with local organizations, amplifying awareness of the challenges faced by individuals with disabilities. Through my endeavors, I aim to foster a supportive network that promotes inclusivity and enhances the quality of life for all members of our community.

Collaboration Partners

I have identified several key partners and support systems that play a vital role in my advocacy and personal journey. One of my primary collaborators is my case manager at the CLS-FM home. They help me navigate the complex world of healthcare resources and connect me with essential services tailored to my unique needs. Their support has been instrumental in ensuring I have access to the therapy and rehabilitation programs that help me enhance my daily living skills.

Additionally, I am actively seeking to collaborate with local organizations in Cleveland, TN, such as the Epilepsy Foundation and disability rights advocacy groups. I believe that through partnerships with these organizations, I can amplify my voice and raise awareness about the challenges faced by individuals with epilepsy and brain injuries. They can provide mentorship, resources, and a network of individuals who share similar experiences, reinforcing my commitment to creating a more inclusive community. Together, I hope we can work toward ensuring that individuals like myself have access to the funding and assistive technology necessary to thrive.

Sustainability Plan

After receiving assistance, I will focus on sustaining my progress by actively using the mobility aids and assistive technology I acquire. This will allow me to navigate my daily life with greater independence and will reinforce my commitment to enhancing my daily living skills. I plan to set specific goals for using these tools, tracking my progress to ensure that I am maximizing their benefits in my everyday activities. By maintaining a routine that incorporates these aids, I will continue developing my self-sufficiency and confidence.

Additionally, I will leverage the connections I make with local organizations and community groups in Cleveland, TN, to create a lasting impact. Engaging in workshops and speaking engagements will not only raise awareness about neurodiversity and disability rights but also provide opportunities for me to learn from others and refine my advocacy skills. Evaluating the effectiveness of my outreach initiatives will be crucial; by reflecting on the results, I can identify areas for improvement and ensure that I continue to empower myself and others in our shared journey toward greater accessibility and inclusion.

Barriers & Challenges

I face numerous challenges daily due to my epilepsy and anoxic brain injury, particularly after experiencing complications from a botched neck surgery. The clawing effect in my hands makes it difficult for me to perform even basic tasks, which can be exhausting and frustrating. My physical limitations often hinder my ability to gain the independence I desire, despite the progress I made during my years in a group home. Although I have learned valuable skills in that environment, I still grapple with the need for specific support that is not always readily available in my current living situation.

Securing the necessary funding for mobility aids tailored to my needs has proven to be another significant barrier. The financial strain affects my ability to access vital healthcare resources, assistive technology, and rehabilitation programs essential for my daily living skills. Additionally, the lack of awareness about the challenges faced by individuals like me perpetuates a cycle of isolation, making my advocacy work for neurodiversity and disability rights even more crucial. I strive to build connections within my community to raise awareness, yet the path to achieving my goals often feels daunting.

Special Circumstances

I, Gilbert Allen McCosh, have faced significant medical challenges throughout my life due to epilepsy and an anoxic brain injury. Since the age of 2, I have navigated the complexities of living with these conditions, which have dramatically affected my daily functioning. After experiencing a botched neck surgery, I am now living with a clawing effect in my hands, making it difficult for me to perform everyday tasks without assistance. My experiences in a group home have allowed me to develop independence, but I still face hurdles that require specific support from the healthcare and rehabilitation systems.

Currently, residing in a CLS-FM home, I am actively working to advocate for better epilepsy support and brain injury assistance. My passion for neurodiversity advocacy drives me to secure funding that will help acquire mobility aids tailored to my needs, enabling me to enhance my daily living skills. Financially, I am often challenged in obtaining the necessary resources to support my journey towards greater independence. By sharing my story and seeking chronic illness grants, I aim to not only improve my own situation but also inspire others facing similar challenges to embrace their uniqueness and strive for inclusion in all aspects of life.
